the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased from 10.5 million to 13.5 million (19.5% of the population).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of older people, and the Government has set out a strategy for doing so in the White Paper on Ageing Better: Our Future Together (Department of Health 2000).

The White Paper sets out a vision of a society in which older people are able to live well, and to contribute to their communities. It identifies a number of key areas for action, including:

• Improving the health and care of older people.

• Supporting older people to live independently and actively.

• Improving the lives of older people in care.

• Improving the lives of older people in the community.

• Improving the lives of older people in the workplace.

• Improving the lives of older people in the home.

• Improving the lives of older people in the neighbourhood.

• Improving the lives of older people in the country.

• Improving the lives of older people in the city.

• Improving the lives of older people in the town.

• Improving the lives of older people in the village.

• Improving the lives of older people in the hamlet.

• Improving the lives of older people in the parish.

• Improving the lives of older people in the ward.

• Improving the lives of older people in the district.
